

Role

Position: Technical Director (Ecology)

Salary: £60-70k

Location: (Flexible) Midlands/North West or Leeds,

One of the UK's largest multidisciplinary consultancies is looking to recruit a highly motivated Ecologist at Technical Director level.

The ideal candidate will possess the following:

- Expertise to Director level or similar in environmental consultancy or related field
- Strong Business Development experience
- Substantial Public Inquiry expertise, including Expert Witness work
- Significant experience of Ecological Impact Assessment
- A sound knowledge of biodiversity legislation and policy and the British planning system
- A track-record of achievement in one or more markets such as; renewables and other energy, water industry, transport, residential or industrial development.
- Experience in the development of innovative but practical mitigation measures
- Experience of EIA coordination or work within multi-disciplinary teams
- Drive and leadership

The company can offer the successful candidate:

- Rewarding, challenging and high profile project work in the UK and overseas, including both commercial and research activities
- A structured career path supported by continuous development and a relevant training programme
- A friendly, considerate and supportive working environment in an office of like-minded professional ecologists
- An ISO 9001 compliant quality assured management system that ensures a balanced and ordered workload
- The use of state of the art tools to support survey, data and spatial analysis
- A highly competitive salary and additional benefits