

Head of Sales

UK

£-Attractive

We are working with a well-established family owned waste management company who have a new and exciting sales opportunity based from home and managing your own diary. The purpose of the role will be to generate new business opportunities in and around London. Using your sales experience and extensive network within the waste/recycling sector, you will assist business growth by way of cold calling and door knocking. In order to be considered for this role you will have experience within a similar role and the ability to 'hit the ground running'. You must have a solid track record of selling total waste management solutions. A full, clean UK driving licence is also essential.
